This short bibliography of general articles and reports about Canadian archaeology is intended to assist individuals who wish to explore the subject and do further reading about the results of recent field research. The bibliography lists some of the more readily accessible articles, leaflets and books that present archaeological research results in a popular and non-technical format. All of the references listed here are available through the Yukon library system or the Yukon Archives in Whitehorse.

More detailed articles are available in a wide variety of professional journals and other publications noted in the bibliographies listed at the end of this circular (i.e. Archaeological Survey of Canada Mercury Series or the Canadian Journal of Archaeology). Detailed general areal syntheses of archaeological research are contained in the relevant volumes of the Handbook of North American Indians (Washington: Smithsonian Institution).

For teaching purposes, a series of slide modules about Canadian archaeology forming part of the "Canada's Visual History" series, are available from McIntyre Educational Media (30 Kelfield Street, Rexdale, Ontario M9W 5A2). Complete with a written guidebook, the slide modules are produced by the National Museum of Man in cooperation with the National Film Board and correspond to the individual volumes in the Canadian Prehistory Series. Each slide module is approximately $40.00.
